

What causes a property to be haunted?

It is my fervent belief that to attract good luck and windfall, one needs to have positive energy personally, and lives in congenial environment that attracts and retains good vibrations. A haunted house is one that is infested with negative energy and it will most likely bring about bad luck, ill fortune and even poor health and live threatening dangers to the occupants.

What causes a property to be haunted? A favourite explanation is that ghost sightings exist in places that for some reason, has an abundance of negative energy. Or putting it the other way, a place that lacks positive energy. Apparitions by definition are nothing but masses of negative energy, so they tend to inhabit or are naturally attracted to such places, much like fish to water or wild animals to the forest. Put simply, ghosts have a natural affinity to places with negative energy.

What can cause a place to have negative energy in the first place? There are many reasons. If, for example, some members of a household have been under a lot of stress (which is a negative activity) because of work pressures, spousal problems, financial problems etc. – that WILL cause the environment inside the house to be also negative. This happens because negative energy from that person will slowly but surely permeate every nook and cranny of the house, eventually causing the entire house to be negatively charged. This negativity, if prolonged and if powerful enough, CAN attract evil spirits and demons to enter the house uninvited, simply because their mutual affinity.

A person, who always has a positive outlook, is always happy and an optimist is least likely to be possessed by evil spirits!

An example – if a brutal murder, which is an overwhelmingly powerful negative activity, occurs, naturally the atmosphere at the place of the crime will become infused with powerful negative energy. This then becomes a natural habitat for the supernatural. Even if the crime victim does not return to haunt it, other lost souls will be attracted to it.

A happy house, with a lot of active kids running about noisily ie. one bursting with positive energy, or one that is permeated strongly everywhere with sunlight CAN NEVER become occupied with ghosts! Simple as that! If anything, ghosts will RUN AWAY from such places! WHY? Because there's an abundance of positive energy inside the house! The undead are terrified of such places. They can only feel comfortable in places with negative energy.

“Don't ever let your property be transformed from one with positive energy to one with negative energy. Because if you do, even if ghouls don't come for a permanent visit, you'll eventually become physically ill or your business will fail. Always try to be happy, positive and optimistic. This will infuse your house with an abundance of positive, radiant energy. If you are able to do this constantly, even your health will improve.”

Were there any unexplained odours, especially of fragrant flowers when there were none around the vicinity? Or, on the other hand, unpleasant smells? Was the air stale or mouldy even though the ventilation was good and the windows were open? Unexplained scent, whether pleasant or smelly can be an indication of a unwelcomed presence.

Did you feel an urgency to buy or rent the property right away even if you had some previous misgivings? RUN DON'T WALK out of the property! These are strong signs that the property in question could be haunted even though there were no sightings of apparitions.
